In this edition Israeli, Japanese and Singaporean startups can be accelerated in the ScaleUp inBrazil program

The program allowed two new partnering countries for a two-year cycle of the following next two editions (2022 and 2023): Japan and Singapore. This means that in addition to Israel-based startups, technology companies based in these two countries will also be able to participate in the ScaleUp inBrazil program.

The selection of a new partnering country requires the application of a national entity with an office in Brazil. The applicants are evaluated according to three criteria: its position in the Global Innovation Index published by WIPO; the submission of a list of potential companies willing to expand to Brazil; and the identification of the major challenges of country-based companies with operations in Brazil had to penetrate the Brazilian market.

Program Structure

Check out the steps of this climb:

STAGE 1: Setting the Stage | An overview of the Brazilian market

A maximum of 30 companies will be selected to join this stage of the program where they will be provided with a local market report overview of the sectors where each company operates. The report is intended to provide each company with more sector-based details on the market they are looking to enter. They will also participate in webinars that will provide an overview of the:

- The Brazilian business environment including details on legal and taxes issues;
- A dialogue with foreign tech companies already operating in the country and their feedback on experiences and lessons learned;
- An overview of the business culture and what that means in terms of customer approach and relationship.

STAGE 2: Immersion Experience I | Identifying customers and understanding how Brazil operates

A maximum of twenty (20) companies will be selected to the second stage of the program to initiate their penetration process in Brazil. This stage is divided into two parts, an online and onsite.

Online

In this stage each company will go through an online interview with a professional biz dev expert to understand more of the company's product and elaborate a strategic plan to enter the Brazilian market, identify potential customers and secure meetings for the onsite part of the program.

The companies will also participate in online training sessions on key topics related to doing business in Brazil, adapting your product to the local market, understanding your customer and knowing who potential local partners and investors are.

Onsite

Companies will be hosted in São Paulo and will participate in business meetings with potential clients, workshops and meetups.

STAGE 3: Product Pivot

Upon completion of stage 2, the entrepreneurs will return to their countries and continue to adapt their products/services to the Brazilian market. We expect that at this stage companies will:

- Implement the product pivots identified during the immersion phase to deliver a minimum viable product to customers as quickly as possible

- Participate in weekly individual company online discussions with the program managers
 - Continue with customer identification and relationship nurturing
 - Plan next steps for Brazil's market penetration and business development

STAGE 4: Immersion Experience II | Proof of Concept to the Brazilian market

Immersion experience II is dedicated to presenting the main hubs of the Brazilian innovation ecosystem.

The companies will also have the opportunity for follow up meetings with potential clients met during Immersion I as well as meetings with new potential clients and partners.

STAGE 5: Post Program Support

Scaling up is not easy especially if entering a new market. Understanding that this is a long-term process, the Scale-up in Brazil program will continue to provide value-added services and support to the selected entrepreneurs for a period of 6 months by:

> Providing access to all the recorded training sessions held in the program.

> Providing support through an advisory committee composed of the program sponsors and experts in the entrepreneur's sectors to provide advice and introductions to Brazilian customers, suppliers, service providers, technical experts, regulators and government officials

Selection process:

All registrants will be evaluated by the selection committee, which is comprised of members of ABVCAP, Apex-Brasil as well as VCs and CVCs from Brazil and from the partnering countries.
